

SPARTA SOCCER CLUB

DEVELOPMENTAL PLAYER FORM

Sparta Soccer Club provides the opportunity for travel team coaches to offer players positions on their teams as “developmental players”. For these positions, there is no required playing time and it is likely that the child will receive less playing time than other players. However, the coach feels that the child has potential and will benefit from the higher level of training, the ability to play at a higher flight and the opportunity to play with better players. On offering one of these spots, the coach is required to report back to the board and parents at the end of the fall season with how the player is progressing and whether they will remain a developmental player for the spring season, or have improved enough to receive normal playtime requirements.

For these positions, unlike other travel team players, SSC will allow developmental players to play in a recreational team, in addition to the travel team, to get more game experience, should they choose to do so.

This form aims to capture the agreement between the coach of a SSC travel team and the parent of a player being offered a “developmental player” position with regard to the different playing time rules associated with the position.
